The four building blocks of discovery for 0-4 year olds

Every child is unique and born with the potential to develop. At LEGO Company, we believe that by nurturing this potential we can encourage the learning process, helping to create bright, happy, and well-rounded individuals. That’s why we created LEGO® EXPLORE, the world’s first fully integrated play and development system for pre-school children, helping parents to help their children grow.

Working closely with experts in child development, we have examined the ways that children learn about themselves, other people and the world they live in – and the importance of making this experience fun. We identified four distinct areas of learning, each driven by your child’s natural curiosity and urge to explore through play. We have called these the ‘four worlds’. The toys within these worlds will inspire, stimulate and challenge children at different stages in their development. With the Complete Discovery System, you can share in the joy of discovery with your child – whilst having a serious amount of fun along the way!

explore being me – discovering who I am and what I can do

Birth is the start of an amazing journey of self-discovery for your child. Finding out what it means to ‘be me’ involves learning a whole set of physical and mental skills. Many of these skills are pre-programmed at birth and continue to develop throughout the childhood years. Newborn babies have almost no control over their body’s movements, but by three months they are able to grasp a rattle and shake it. Some nine months later, that unforgettable first step is quickly followed by walking, running, climbing and jumping. Whilst you can’t speed up their physical development, you can build confidence and offer exciting opportunities for practising new skills.

In the world of explore being me, you’ll find toys that stimulate your child’s mental and physical growth, encouraging motor skills, improving hand-to-eye co-ordination, and enhancing body control. Through play, your child will gain a greater understanding of "Who I am" and "What I can do".

explore together – learning to share and interact with others

Children are "primed" from birth for building relationships. That first toothless smile is a clear sign that your baby is glad you’re around. Over the next few years, your child will spend a lot of time observing other people and copying what they do. Playing with friends and siblings is also a great way of developing social skills. One of the biggest lessons is learning to share and take turns. As they get to school age, children will want to feel part of the crowd but won’t want to compromise their own sense of identity. They’ll experiment with what is and isn’t acceptable behaviour.

A child’s imagination is boundless and make-believe role-play games are a great way to examine these different social set-ups. In the world of explore together you’ll find toys that encourage your child to build relationships. Whether they play by themselves or with others, children will love the opportunity to develop their social skills.

explore logic – understanding how things work

A baby who has discovered that shaking a rattle makes a satisfying sound has entered the world of explore logic. And this baby will soon turn into a toddler who starts every sentence with ‘why’ and wants to know how everything works! In this world, these little scientists want to explore and investigate. From the baby who stares at a mobile trying to differentiate between the shapes and colours, to a school child who has grasped the concept of cause and effect, this is a journey of discovery that will help shape their existence.

At the heart of explore logic is your child’s curiosity about the world and the way things work. Toys from this world will prompt children to ask questions and develop their powers of reasoning. explore imagination – expressing my personality and creativity

Imitation, pretend play and make-believe all come from the rich world of your child’s imagination. In the world of explore imagination, children learn different ways to express themselves, using a constantly changing set of creative skills. From only a few weeks old your baby will start copying your facial expressions. Soon your baby will discover the joy of nursery rhymes. This will lead on to simple rituals like feeding dolly and activities such as singing, dancing and looking at pop-up books. By the time they’ve reached school age, they’ll have started to express their thoughts clearly and explain abstract ideas through drawing, putting on puppet shows and acting out stories.

The world of explore imagination is full of toys that will stimulate your child’s creative skills. Give children the opportunity to express themselves through play and you’ll help build their self-confidence and teach them to think for themselves.

Children love experimenting with sounds and the LEGO® Music Builder range gives full reign to the power of their musical expression. As part of the explore imagination world, the range enables children to play with the basic musical elements of pitch, harmony, tempo and rhythm.

With their own choice of melody and accompaniment, including musical instruments and effects such as animal sounds, children will enjoy making music! Each product creates sounds and music in a different way, encouraging a range of motor skills and experimentation.

Williams F1 Team Racer

Sleek, slender, and very very fast, the LEGO Williams F1 Team Racer has the same aerodynamic shape and design as the real Williams F1 BMW FW24. Scaled down to a fantastic 65 cm model, this racer is a true copy, featuring the same colour and carrying the same adverts as its big brother. It may not be able to stick to the tarmac at 360 km/h – but this is the next best thing! The LEGO Williams F1 Team Racer also features a replica V10-cylinder engine, high-speed tyres, independent suspension on all four wheels, and an air-pressure controlled function that ejects the top half of the bodywork.
